Materials that are subsequently determined by Dansville Michigan Historical Society not to possess historical or archival value may be returned to the donor. Unless specified above, Dansville Michigan Historical Society has the right to destroy, transfer, trade, or otherwise dispose of non-historic donated materials. The donor will not be notified of the disposition of non-historic materials if the donor elects not to have the materials returned.

Donated materials, or their digitized versions, may be made accessible to researchers and to the public for photocopying/reproduction.

Dansville Michigan Historical Society may transfer partial copyrights, publication rights, licenses, and other similar rights to third parties at some future date, to facilitate the publication of or greater public accessibility to donated materials.
